Membership Information:

Following the Snaresbrook Court ruling, The Loose Cannon Club opened as an official and proper private members club. This means backgammon, poker, crib and kalooki can be played throughout the club legally.

The membership fee is £145 per quarter (13 weeks) and after that you do not pay a rake, entry fee for the club or tournaments and have unlimited use of the club and its facilities

Food:

Loose Cannon has a great menu with a large range of snacks and full blown meals - these can be eaten at the standard bar tables or alternatively you can take a table in the restaurant area.

Bar:

The bar opens at midday and because it is a private members bar they can stay open as long as they like which means you always get champagne whenever you have a big win to celebrate.

Personal Comments/Advice:

The Loose cannon has done a great thing here by concentrating on making the club great and not on trying to stay under the legal radar for poker clubs.

The club itself is really well designed and laid out with plenty of space for poker, watching sport or simply having a beer with your mates. This is definitely a club to keep an eye on especially since it has the fastest growing membership of any UK poker club.

Remember: This The Loose Cannon Poker Club is only open Mon - Fri from noon and not at weekends

Games Available:

As mentioned above they have a whole bunch of games in addition to poker, and whilst this is the main game, if you want it you can always find someone to sit down with and play backgammon, kalooki, or crib.

The normal tournament schedule looks like this, but always phone ahead to check there isn't a corporate event or something:
